With the acknowlegement of my mistake, I ask you, Mr. Weisberg, whom I very much admire and respect, what I can do to help you. Let's just say I want to be at your disposal. I'd like as much help and guidance as you are willing to provide. I really didnt mean to lecture you. I certainly didnt mean to undermine the actions of the government. I may not be as appauled as you at what they have done, but it bothers me enough to have attracted my attention so deeply and for so long – this within a person who wasn't even born in that era.

You may not want to be any "mentor". You may not even want to reply again. But I want to assure you that I can't tell you enough how much I appreciate the responses you have given me. I feel privileged and honored nonetheless.

Thank you again...
Hoping To Hear From You Again...

Respectfully,

Craig Ciccone

P.S. I wouldnt mind living in Maryland... I am a big fan of the Baltimore Blast. Let me know if there are any cheap apartments available!!

Mr. Weisberg,

Thank you very much for the copies of your two books, Photographic Whitewash and Post Mortem. I know that I paid for them, but I'm just glad that I finally have them.

Gratitude aside, enough of the slanging matches. It seems that we have both misunderstood each other. I just wanted to make it clear that I am very aware of the dangers of misleading audiences. What I told you is that I would like to speak publicly when I should have said that public speeches would be a much more affective method in stirring interest. Unless someone is very much into this case, one will not take it upon themselves to buy a five, six, or seven hundred page book on the subject. I would think one would be more apt to go and listen to someone speak. At this stage, I will have to admit that I am certainly not qualified as of yet to be such a speaker, but with more research, I hope to be able to achieve such a status in the future.

And I suppose that another point that I didnt make clear is that I want to become more involved. You're right - I have read what I have been able to get my hands on. Here in mediocre Michigan, I don't have very many advantages at my disposal. I can't take a stroll to the National Archives or the Library of Congress. I wasn't born during the Warren Commission, I was still sucking my thumb during the Garrison Trial, and I still had zits while the HSCA hearings were underway. But here I am in 1990 - hungry, eager, and willing to do what ever it takes to be a part of trying to achieve the truth.
